

LIST OF COMMISSIONS

This list of Lanning Roper's gardens is compiled from surviving correspondence (the Lanning Roper Papers, now in the Royal Horticultural Society's Lindley Library) and with additional information from the memories of his clients and friends.

The list requires a word of explanation. The names in brackets after the name of the house indicate Lanning's clients, though in many cases they are no longer the owners. The words 'garden design' and 'planting design' are self-explanatory and are used to indicate a short-term commission. Lanning's preferred way of working was to tend his gardens over a period of years, and I have adopted the word 'advice' to describe this. 'Garden advice' means that he oversaw a substantial rearrangement of the garden, or part of it; 'planting advice' means that he mainly adjusted and carried out progressive changes in planting only. In the places where he was mainly the planting consultant I have named the architect or other designer who may have been involved. But the situations were infinitely variable, as my book explains, and this list can only give a brief guide, though it does help in assessing his work. An asterisk * beside the name of the garden indicates that there is a file of correspondence in the Lindley Library; CL indicates that Lanning wrote an article in Country Life about the garden, and these can be found by referring to the published index of names of houses and gardens; n.d. indicates that the date of the work is unknown.
